

GRAND JURY GETS PRISON COURT DATA

Three More Convicts Subpoenaed, One From Auburn and Two From Sing Sing.

WILLETT AIDING WEEKS

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Nov. 10.—The records of the Mutual Welfare League court that Warden Thomas Mott Osborne founded at Sing Sing are furnishing evidence to convince the Grand Jury which is investigating assaults and immorality in the prison that the warden had difficulty in curbing certain tendencies of his unruly "boys."

Although the Grand Jury could get these records for only three of the ten months of the court's existence two days work on them has resulted in the subpoenaing of three more convicts, one from Auburn and two from Sing Sing, making nine convict witnesses to date. From one of the new ones, who was locked up in the county jail here today, District Attorney Weeks hopes to get a hint of where the missing records are. He is James Connolly, who succeeded William B. Cummings as "mayor" of the prison when a row caused Cummings' transfer to Great Meadow.

The two other new witnesses are expected to give important testimony. George Sereck arrived today from Auburn, where he was transferred recently from Sing Sing. Sereck can give much information about the first of many alleged cases of immorality in the prison to come to the notice of Superintendent of Prisons John B. Riley. William B. Treacy, pitcher on the prison baseball team, was for some time operator of the telephone switchboard. It has been alleged that the prison telephone wires were tapped.

Today's Grand Jury proceedings went along rather well defined lines. With the Mutual Welfare court records as a basis, the testimony of two victims of assaults was taken, and explained later in conferences with Mr. Weeks by ex-Congressman William Willett, until recently judge of the prison court. The two witnesses were Joseph Rotella and James Harvey, two of the original six whom Mr. Weeks brought here from Sing Sing.

It is likely that the same procedure will be followed for several days at least. The court record of the league's trials of assault and immorality cases here is what Warden Osborne has taken it to be, a weighing of his entire prison system rather than a mere investigation into criminal acts.

Although much secrecy is observed concerning the Grand Jury's deliberations, it was said that thus far nothing has happened to indicate that the inquiry is what Warden Osborne has taken it to be, a weighing of his entire prison system rather than a mere investigation into criminal acts. The others may agree with the warden, and wish to assist him, was implied, however, in rumors that persisted here today. One was that a group of Mr. Osborne's supporters, meeting in Adolph Lewisohn's home at Ardsley,

INSPECTION RECORD IN FACTORY FIRE MISSING

Direct Issue of Veracity Raised Between State Industrial Commission and Employee Under Suspension —Bolted Door as Main Point at Issue.

WILLET AIDING WEEKS

Corner Ernest R. Wagner and District Attorney James C. Cropsey, who are investigating the Williamsburg factory fire, learned yesterday at the Coroner's inquest that the card which contains a complete record of the steps taken by the State Industrial Commission to enforce its fireproofing orders is missing. The missing card raised a direct issue of veracity between the commission and Inspector George A. Rosequist, who was suspended for failure to report promptly that the owners of the Diamond Building had not complied with orders.

Rosequist testified that on March 23 he returned the card to the commission for reference to counsel of the fireproofing order to Diamond, dated January 7; that he received it back again for another inspection visit to the factory just prior to August 20, and on that date again referred the owner's non-compliance to the commission's counsel, Frederick H. Cunningham, for prosecution. When the commissioners suspended Rosequist and his supervisor, Charles B. Ash, a few days ago they gave as their reason the fact that Rosequist had held the card until August 20. Mr. Cunningham notified Diamond on September 17 that prosecution would begin on September 27. Commissioner James M. Lynch told Mr. Cropsey, however, that the missing card had been traced to counsel's office, where all track of it was lost.

Furthermore, said Mr. Lynch, the card should be in Rosequist's possession because counsel's book shows that it was returned to the inspector. Mr. Cunningham promised to produce the book. Rosequist said he never got the card back again after August 20. His supervisor, Ash, could not recall getting it, and hence apparently there is no evidence to show that Rosequist did refer the order to counsel after his March visit. Mr. Lynch said the search for the card was most complete, but futile.

Mr. Cropsey also adduced from Mr. Lynch's testimony that although the card had signed a petition to Gov. Whitman, urging that he stop the investigation, Mr. Lewisohn said he had nothing to say on the subject.

It was rumored also that the Prison Association had telegraphed the Governor interceding for Warden Osborne. Dr. Orlando F. Lewis, secretary of the association, left town last night, and could not be reached.

The warden and Huntington W. Merchant, his attorney, were not in White Plains today, but are expected to-morrow.

Request for Mrs. N. D. Hillis.

ROCKFORD, Ill., Nov. 10.—Mrs. Nellie Hillis, wife of the pastor of Plymouth Church, Brooklyn, with her sister, Mrs. C. W. Moyer of this city, will receive the income from two-fifths of the estate of her father, Richard M. Patrick of Marengo, whose will was filed for probate to-day. Two sons receive the remainder. The estate is estimated at $400,000.

OFFSPRING OF ALIEN PARENTS HARDEST

Health Department Figures Show More Deaths Among Native Population.

Due to Maternal Care

Children under 5 years old who are born in this city of native parents die more quickly than children whose parents are foreigners, according to figures for 1914 made public yesterday by the Health Department. The compilation, which was made under the direction of Dr. William H. Guilford, registrar of records, shows that out of every 1,000 children of native white parentage forty-four boys and thirty-five girls do not reach their fifth year, whereas on the same basis thirty-nine boys and thirty-two girls who are the offspring of foreigners die in early childhood.

The infant mortality figures for the native population are swelled to a greater proportion when the records for negro children are considered. Among this class 112 male babies and ninety-five female die out of every 1,000. Added to the statistics for whites these figures give an average of seventy-eight boys and sixty-five girls.

This percentage, which is contrary to the commonly accepted views of laymen, was attributed by health officials to the difference in the social life of the two classes of parents and the discrepancy in the amount of medical supervision which is centered on the maternal care of infants.

In the opinion of Dr. Charles F. Bolduan, director of the bureau of public health education, the foreign mother is more apt to remain at home and look after her child than the native mother, who is called away by a greater number of social duties. Although the native mother can read magazines which treat of the proper upbringing of children, Dr. Bolduan pointed out that the health authorities come into more personal contact with the foreign mothers.

The maternal care bestowed is rated in the statement of the Health Department as the chief factor in lowering the death rate among the children of foreign parents. The improvement in this direction is ascribed to the campaign conducted by the bureau of child hygiene under Dr. S. Josephine Baker.

The mortality among native white children, arranged according to the birthplace of the mother, gave the following results: Native mothers, 39 per 1,000; English, 28; German and Austro-Hungarian, 25; Swedish, 22; Russian, Hungarian and Polish, 20; Irish, 32; Italian, 33; and French, 32.

Among the babies of negro parents the only disease group that approximated the figures for white native children was that of the contagious diseases. All other causes of death, especially the respiratory, tuberculous and congenital, exhibited a mortality much higher than among the whites.

On the whole, however, members of the Health Department were gratified with the general betterment of infant hygiene over conditions a quarter of a century ago, when one baby out of every ten failed to reach its fifth year.

MANY SAY 'BARONESS' GOT THEIR GOOD CASH

Testify Against Woman Who Introduced Them to "Mrs. Vanderbilt."

The manner in which the name of "Vanderbilt" was used to obtain hundreds of dollars from art collectors and merchants was told yesterday in Yorkville. Police Court by complainants against Mrs. Anna Minuth. The woman, who said that she was once Baroness von Hatfield, waited examination and was held in $2,000 bail for General Sessions.

Many witnesses told how they had advanced money to Mrs. Minuth. The specific charge was that Mrs. Minuth passed a worthless check of $68 on Benjamin W. Levitan, an architect.

Dr. James Ward, an art collector and connoisseur of paintings living at 604 West 114th street, declared that Mrs. Minuth three years ago called him to her home at 52 West Thirty-fifth street, to appraise two paintings. He pronounced the paintings, he said, genuine works of Rubens and Franz Hals and said they were worth $20,000 each. She then engaged him to sell the works. The alleged Baroness, he said, later gave him a check, which was returned marked "no funds." Meeting her again, he related, he was introduced to a "Mrs. Vanderbilt," who assured him that he would be paid and promised surety. The art collector asserted he learned that Mrs. Minuth had only an option on the pictures and it was alleged, had borrowed $2,000 on them.

Other complainants were Mrs. Elizabeth Wetmore, 418 West 124th street; Julian Benedict, a real estate dealer in the Marbridge Building; Hughes Bros., grocers, 948 Sixth avenue; and Nicholas Anson, a butcher of 972 Sixth avenue. In the case of Hughes Bros. it was alleged that Mrs. Minuth posed as the widow of Dr. Francis Delafield, 5 West Fifth street.

The manner in which the name of "Vanderbilt" was used to obtain hundreds of dollars from art collectors and own home by furnishing it with the mighty influence of ready cash. As a specific demonstration of how truly it pays to buy at Macy's we present for comparison the following suites of Dining Room Furniture.
